Battelle does not have the same language in its contract regarding former TtEC workers...and I am aware of at least one former TtEC worker who works for them.

Derek

Dear Derek,

Thank you for this partial response. I wanted to see if Battelle hires any former TTEC workers in its oversight at Hunters Point?

SOW - Navy's third party oversight of rad contractors

Hi Lily, slight edit below, but otherwise looks good.

Derek

In addition, the Navy routinely monitors for radionuclides through air monitors upwind and downwind of radiological cleanup sites, weekly scans at the perimeter of active radiological worksites, and groundwater sampling at radiological sites. Finally, the Navy has hired a third party independent contractor for routine on-site oversight of radiological work. Monitoring is done by multiple different contractors independent of Tetra Tech, ECI. None of these efforts has indicated levels of radiation that exceed health-based standards that have exposed current residents.

Dear Derek,

Thank you for your messages this morning clarifying that for the CH2M

"our SOW for this project includes language to prevent conflict-of-interest and/or the appearance of conflict-of-interest. The focus of this language is to prevent people who have worked for TTEC from working on this project."

And

"CH2M will not use any of its personnel or hire as subcontractors anyone that has prior experience working for Tetra Tech EC, Inc."

I was wondering if you had a similar situation with this ongoing 3rd party oversight. Also, were you able to clarify whether or not Batelle does unannounced inspections? Do they provide a

"conflict of interest" letter?

Thanks!

- Lily

Hello BCT members - As requested, attached is a scope of work summary for the HPNS radiological QC contractor. If you have any questions, please contact the Navy directly.

This action item will be marked as completed.

Thanks,
Jamie
